The healer strengthens what has become weak.

The healer brings comfort where there is pain.

The healer understands that restoration is often a process.

The healer does not create life.

 Primary Fruit

 Kindness

Healing begins with compassion.

People often heal where they feel safe.

Kindness creates an environment where restoration can occur.

Without kindness, healing becomes cold.

 Secondary Fruit

 Gentleness

The wounded require care.

The broken require patience.

The healer must know how to handle fragile things.

Gentleness allows restoration without causing further harm.

 Hidden Fruit

 Patience

This fruit is often overlooked.

Healing rarely happens instantly.

Growth takes time.

Recovery takes time.

Restoration takes time.

The healer must trust the process.
