

THE HALL OF WITNESSES

Before You Proceed

Traveler,

Many seek the end before beginning the journey.

Many desire the crown before the cross.

Many desire the harvest before the labor.

Many desire the inheritance before the covenant.

So before you continue, answer honestly.

Have you repented?

Have you sought forgiveness?

Have you entered the waters of covenant?

Have you examined your own heart?

Have you walked through the missions placed before you?

Have you allowed TMH to correct you?

Have you followed truth when it became costly?

Have you remained faithful when no one was watching?

If not, how did you arrive in this room?

For this Hall was not built for spectators.

It was built for witnesses.

The Wedding Garment

A king prepared a wedding feast.

Many were invited.

Many entered.

Yet one man entered without the proper garment.

The feast was available.

The invitation was available.

The king was available.

Yet preparation was neglected.

The problem was not arrival.

The problem was readiness.

So examine yourself.

Not your congregation.

Not your teacher.

Not your elder.

Not your pastor.

Not your favorite speaker.

Yourself.

For no man will stand before TMH carrying another person's obedience.

No man will inherit because another man believed.

No man will enter because another man was faithful.

Every soul must answer for the path they walked.

A Necessary Reminder

Brothers and sisters may help you.

Teachers may instruct you.

Watchmen may warn you.

Shepherds may guide you.

Yet none of them can walk your covenant for you.

None of them can repent for you.

None of them can obey for you.

None of them can endure for you.

The journey remains personal.

Guidance may be shared.

Responsibility may not.

If You Have Not Begun

Return to the Covenant Gate.

Begin there.

Walk honestly.

Walk faithfully.

Walk humbly.

The path remains open.

If You Have Begun

Return to your mission.

Continue your labor.

Strengthen your foundation.

Complete what TMH has placed before you.

Then return.

The Hall of Witnesses will remain.

Final Question

When your name is called,

Will you be able to testify about what TMH did through your life?

Or will you only be able to speak about what others told you?

The Hall of Witnesses awaits your answer.
